

ALLIED ARMIES FACING DARKEST HOURS OF WAR

AMERICAN MILITARY LEADERS THINK THEY SEE PLAN OF TEUTONS TO PLUNDER ALL THE RICHES OF THE EAST

TEUTONIC PLANS FAR REACHING

By Robert J. Bender
United Press Staff Correspondent
Washington, March 8.—German plunderquest upon the helpless countries of the far East is now intended to swing into Macedonia on the Salonika front where the Teutons with the Bulgars and the Turks returned from the Russian and Roumanian fronts are assembling to deliver a mighty blow which is occupying the attention of allied leaders.

American military men have long scouted the proposition of a big German drive on the east front this year, where Germany stood to lose much if she failed and to gain little if she won. British leaders have taken the same view. The Teutons' present plan, military men believe is to clean up the trouble at her back door, annex 100,000 miles of territory and millions in wealth from the occupied lands and then at last having effected a clearing at her rear, hurl her own and vassal armies against the west front.

As military men view the situation today the armies of democracy are going through the darkest hour of the war. Germany has obtained in addition the wealthy industrial districts in western Russia by the ceding of Batum to Turkey. Near Batum are some of the richest manganese ore deposits in the world. Already Germany controls vast rich oil fields in Roumania, Russia and Galicia and is now welding the links which lead to the grain stores in Ukraine in the future. By driving through Roumania to Odessa the Germans will effect a way of importing from Trans-Caucasia and Ukraine needed food stuffs, oil and other supplies.

Officials of the plant refused to give any information but the strikers declare that the work at the yards will be tied up before night. The information on the strike conditions came from the local headquarters while the company maintains silence.

LITTLE TOT SAVED FROM DEATH BY OFFICER LEAVY

Persons at Third and Market streets waiting for the arrival of the 3.45 passenger train yesterday afternoon had the scare of their lives and also witnessed the daring rescue of a little girl from death beneath the wheels of the oncoming locomotive.

Just as the train was approaching the Market street crossing a crowd of little folks from the Market street schools also reached Third street. Chief of Police Eadie was at the center of the crossing warning traffic of the approach of the train and shouted a warning to the little folks to not attempt to cross. The kiddos were laughing and talking among themselves oblivious to everything else. Chief Eadie's shout served to attract their attention however, and all stopped but one little tot, possibly seven years old. She continued on her way and stepped right into the track in front of the train. The engineer had shut off his power for the stop but to the onlookers it appeared as though nothing could avert a tragedy and many of them turned their heads to avoid witnessing the crushing of the little form by the huge wheels of the engine. Chief Eadie rushed to the rescue but before he could get to the spot Juvenile Probation Officer W. J. Leavy, sensed the situation and springing in front of the engine threw his arm around the little tot and was over the track just as the train swept by. It was certainly a narrow escape and a daring rescue and Mr. Leavy was congratulated upon every hand for his presence of mind and prompt action.

When the names are received by the war department each man will be listed as a deserter and an order will be issued for his arrest forthwith. This ruling, while absolutely just and right, will work a hardship on many a registrant, who waived the call and volunteering is now in service, but whose address is unknown to the local boards and whose families have not thought it worth while to forward questionnaires or other official mail, because they knew the registrant to be in the service, or acquainted the board with their latest address.

ELEVEN KILLED IN LONDON AIR RAID LAST EVENING

By United Press
London, March 8.—Eleven persons were killed and 46 injured in last night's air raid over London, Lord French announced today. He added that it was feared 6 others are still buried in the wreckage. Two enemy airplanes of a fleet of 7 or 8 succeeded in reaching the city it was stated. They dropped several bombs. Two other planes coming up the Thames Estuary were stopped before reaching London. Others crossed Essex dropping bombs southwest and northwest of London. Several houses were demolished. The reports from the coast declared that a vivid aurora borealis over the North Sea illuminated the coast and made possible last night's air raid.

The same phenomenon was visible throughout practically the entire northern part of the United States last night.

NEW COAL ORDER

The following order has been promulgated by the U. S. Fuel administration:

No charge for hauling may be made by the operator of a wagon mine or paid by the purchaser of the coal on coal shipped by rail, except where such shipment is made in box cars, in which case an additional charge not to exceed 75c per ton may be made.

In all other cases the price of wagon mine coal on board cars shall not exceed the price prescribed by the President and the fuel administrator for coal in the mine.

Coal sold from a wagon mine in Clearfield county and loaded in box cars shall be sold at $3.80 per net ton on board cars. A commission of 15c per ton may be added to this price if sold through broker.

SLACKERS WILL BE PICKED UP BEFORE LONG

The Fellow In Class 1 Who Has Not Been Examined Had Better Get Busy Now

NEW MEDICAL BOARD ORDER

The local exemption board has received notice to return to the Adjutant General's department at Harrisburg for transmission to the war department the names of all registrants who have not returned their questionnaires together with the names of all those in Class 1A who have been called and not presented themselves for medical examination. These names will be sent in this week.

When the names are received by the war department each man will be listed as a deserter and an order will be issued for his arrest forthwith.

This ruling, while absolutely just and right, will work a hardship on many a registrant, who waived the call and volunteering is now in service, but whose address is unknown to the local boards and whose families have not thought it worth while to forward questionnaires or other official mail, because they knew the registrant to be in the service, or acquainted the board with their latest address.

Every man in Class 1A who has not yet received his call for examination had better get in touch with his local board, because it is up to him to be on hand when wanted and the mere fact that he failed to receive a call for examination will not save him. He cannot shift his responsibility to the postoffice or any other agency. It is solely up to him and if he has not been examined he is liable to arrest and will be picked up one of these days soon.

We also take occasion now to correct a wrong impression in the minds of many men examined in Class 1A. When the examinations were first held it was the understanding of the orders issued at that time that all those registrants not accepted for first line service would have to go to the medical advisory board at DuBois.

All that has been changed now by the exemption board ruling that the local exemption board will pass upon all cases of possible physical disability, subject to review by the district board, with the exception of those cases which require chemical analysis, X-ray or other procedure wherein the facilities of a modern hospital are necessary. Therefore instead of all those accepted for limited service having to be finally passed upon by the medical advisory board at DuBois, none but those special cases enumerated above will have to go and those persons selected for limited service by the local board are now subject to call the same as those accepted for military service. All those expecting to have to go before the medical advisory board at DuBois will be notified in due time and certificates as to their status will soon be issued to all registrants passed upon at the recent examinations.

Chance to Get Over Quick

Anthony of the United States public service reserve that men are wanted for duty as railway operating men clerks, stenographers, and cooks for immediate service abroad. The men will be attached to the Four Hundred and Sixty-ninth and Thirty-sixth engineering regiments.

SHAPLAN'S CABLES FROM PETROGRAD

The young man who is sticking to his perilous post in Russia to get news for The United Press. The only Press Association correspondent on the ground in Russia.

By Joseph Shaplan
Copyright by United Press 1918

Petrograd, March 6.—The war commissariat today published a plan for arming the whole Russian people offering an immediate opportunity for those desiring to learn military science to prepare for a resumption of the war in the future.

After withdrawing from Narvo the Russians recaptured Jamburg which they fortified with reinforcements from Petrograd. The Germans halted operations in accordance with General Hoffman's order. The Russians attempted to stay outside the city but were obliged to fall back owing to the enemy artillery fire.

LIEUT. PATTERSON SEVERELY INJURED

First Lieutenant Raymond Patterson, son of Mrs. W. H. Patterson, Sr. of Front street, was painfully and seriously injured in an accident which occurred at a government experimental laboratory in Washington, D. C., on Saturday last. Lieutenant Patterson is an expert chemist attached to the poison gas department of the U. S. Army and with a number of other chemists has been engaged in developing and testing out different gases. Saturday last a number of shells had been prepared and were being put in shape to be taken to the proving grounds for testing out. They were placed on a shelf in the laboratory where the men were getting ready to proceed with them to the test.

Entering the section where the bombs were lying Lieut. Patterson noticed one of the number burning. Realizing instantly that if the bomb exploded where it was and set off its companions much damage and possible loss of life would naturally ensue, the young man grabbed the burning death-dealing instrument for the purpose of throwing it out and averting a calamity. He was successful in his attempt but the deadly missile exploded as it left his hand and as a result his entire left hand and wrist were badly mangled and burned. The gas fumes also seriously affected him.

His mother and brother, William H. Patterson were at once notified of the accident and were assured that while Lieut. Patterson's injuries were severe and extremely painful, serious consequences were not to be feared.

It was a gallant and heroic act and the young man was highly complimented on his heroism and prompt action.

OLD AUROA BOREALIS WORKING

The aurora borealis or "northern lights" were very much admired in the northern sky. The heavenly illumination attracted a great deal of attention. Several Fourth Ward citizens after viewing the display for awhile decided they could discern an airplane darting about among the clouds even going so far as to declare they could see the operator switching his searchlight on and off.

Hearing of no destructive bomb dropping in this locality we are constrained to believe the outlanders were mistaken. We have queried Pete Brown for corroborative evidence from his "Big Knob" observatory, but Pete had not come down the ladder from the "peep hole" when our correspondent left for the telephone.

MORE ENLISTMENTS

Mike Parana and Paul Belbosa, two Morris township young men, enlisted at the recruiting office of the local Exemption Board yesterday and were sent to Columbus, Ohio, by Chief Clerk Bain, where they will join the Coast Artillery.

James King, Peter Latz, Joe Michelson, Howard Gross and Leonard Huston, of Elyertown and Earl Scott, of Grass Flat, enlisted in the regular army at Philadelphia and left Thursday for Fort Slocum, New York.

PETROGRAD IS RICH PRIZE FOR HUN INVADER

Russian Capital Has Millions in Pure Gold Stored Away in Old Palaces And Churches

IT IS NOT AN ANCIENT CITY

Washington, D. C., Mar. 8.—Should the German army of invasion continue its onward march through Russia and ultimately reach Petrograd, which is rumored to be the goal of the movement, the Germans would come into possession of one of the richest prizes of the war. The Russian capital is a city of great wealth as well as of great magnificence. The national palaces, museums and art galleries of the city are filled with collections of priceless value. The great cathedrals are filled with untold riches. A levy upon the city and its citizens, as was done in Belgium, would yield the German conquerors millions in gold.

Petrograd is in many ways unique among cities. Only a century and a half ago the little peninsula on which the city stands was nothing more than a dreary, marshy waste, surrounded by thickets and forests and inhabited by a few lonely Finnish fishermen. The region was, however, always looked upon by the peoples in the interior as important for their trade. Novgorod and Dskov both made determined efforts to secure control over it. They built forts at various points in this region during the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, and in their efforts thus to safeguard themselves, they were forever coming into violent contact with the Swedes.

The Swedes, too, erected forts, and during the sixteenth century, it was only by means of almost continuous fighting that, first Novgorod, and then Moscow, maintained its supremacy. In the seventeenth century the power of the Swedes steadily increased, until finally Moscow was compelled to cede the district to Sweden. With the first year of the eighteenth century, however, the position began to be reversed. In 1700 Peter the Great commenced his wars with Sweden and before long drove the Swedes from the region surrounding the mouth of the Neva.

In 1702, even before peace had been established with Sweden, Peter the Great gave orders for the erection of the city which he named after his patron saint, St. Peter. All obstacles were borne down in accomplishing his purpose. Vast armies of people from all parts of Russia were removed to the banks of the Neva to build and to colonize. Great piles were driven deep into the marshlands, in hundreds and thousands, and on these houses were erected in all directions. Everything, in fact, that could be done was done to create a capital, and to create it as quickly as possible.

Once fairly launched, the new city grew apace. As time went on, a system of canals was developed connecting the upper Volga and the Dnieper with the great lakes of the north, and thus, as far as commerce was concerned, the mouth of the Volga was transferred to the Gulf of Finland. Foreigners flocked in great numbers after a time to the new city, and the Russian capital became what it has always remained, one of the most cosmopolitan towns in Europe. Under the Empress Elizabeth, fresh compulsory measures raised the population to 150,000 and during the reign of Catherine II. this figure was almost doubled.

Today, where only a century and a half ago stood a few mud huts of fishermen, reigns a city of marvellous beauty—a city of palaces and cathedrals, of theaters and boulevards and universities. Truly, a rich prize for the Teuton invader.

SUIT WITH LIGHT WAISTCOAT

Suits pursue a happy middle course
this spring in the matter of decoration.
None of them are uncompromisingly
plain and few of them are much trimmed. Small covered buttons make a quiet finishing touch for the example of faultless tailoring shown in the picture. The coat just escapes closing at the front and shows a slight cutaway below its buckle and strap fastening. It is worn over a light waistcoat and has an odd new sleeve that widens below the elbow.

TEUTONIC PLANS FAR REACHING

By Robert J. Bender
United Press Staff Correspondent
Washington, March 8.—German plunderquest upon the helpless countries of the far East is now intended to swing into Macedonia on the Salonika front where the Teutons with the Bulgars and the Turks returned from the Russian and Roumanian fronts are assembling to deliver a mighty blow which is occupying the attention of allied leaders.

American military men have long scouted the proposition of a big German drive on the east front this year, where Germany stood to lose much if she failed and to gain little if she won. British leaders have taken the same view. The Teutons' present plan, military men believe is to clean up the trouble at her back door, annex 100,000 miles of territory and millions in wealth from the occupied lands and then at last having effected a clearing at her rear, hurl her own and vassal armies against the west front.

As military men view the situation today the armies of democracy are going through the darkest hour of the war. Germany has obtained in addition the wealthy industrial districts in western Russia by the ceding of Batum to Turkey. Near Batum are some of the richest manganese ore deposits in the world. Already Germany controls vast rich oil fields in Roumania, Russia and Galicia and is now welding the links which lead to the grain stores in Ukraine in the future. By driving through Roumania to Odessa the Germans will effect a way of importing from Trans-Caucasia and Ukraine needed food stuffs, oil and other supplies.

Officials of the plant refused to give any information but the strikers declare that the work at the yards will be tied up before night. The information on the strike conditions came from the local headquarters while the company maintains silence.

LITTLE TOT SAVED FROM DEATH BY OFFICER LEAVY

Persons at Third and Market streets waiting for the arrival of the 3.45 passenger train yesterday afternoon had the scare of their lives and also witnessed the daring rescue of a little girl from death beneath the wheels of the oncoming locomotive.

Just as the train was approaching the Market street crossing a crowd of little folks from the Market street schools also reached Third street. Chief of Police Eadie was at the center of the crossing warning traffic of the approach of the train and shouted a warning to the little folks to not attempt to cross. The kiddos were laughing and talking among themselves oblivious to everything else. Chief Eadie's shout served to attract their attention however, and all stopped but one little tot, possibly seven years old. She continued on her way and stepped right into the track in front of the train. The engineer had shut off his power for the stop but to the onlookers it appeared as though nothing could avert a tragedy and many of them turned their heads to avoid witnessing the crushing of the little form by the huge wheels of the engine. Chief Eadie rushed to the rescue but before he could get to the spot Juvenile Probation Officer W. J. Leavy, sensed the situation and springing in front of the engine threw his arm around the little tot and was over the track just as the train swept by. It was certainly a narrow escape and a daring rescue and Mr. Leavy was congratulated upon every hand for his presence of mind and prompt action.

When the names are received by the war department each man will be listed as a deserter and an order will be issued for his arrest forthwith. This ruling, while absolutely just and right, will work a hardship on many a registrant, who waived the call and volunteering is now in service, but whose address is unknown to the local boards and whose families have not thought it worth while to forward questionnaires or other official mail, because they knew the registrant to be in the service, or acquainted the board with their latest address.

Every man in Class 1A who has not yet received his call for examination had better get in touch with his local board, because it is up to him to be on hand when wanted and the mere fact that he failed to receive a call for examination will not save him. He cannot shift his responsibility to the postoffice or any other agency. It is solely up to him and if he has not been examined he is liable to arrest and will be picked up one of these days soon.

ELEVEN KILLED IN LONDON AIR RAID LAST EVENING

By United Press
London, March 8.—Eleven persons were killed and 46 injured in last night's air raid over London, Lord French announced today. He added that it was feared 6 others are still buried in the wreckage. Two enemy airplanes of a fleet of 7 or 8 succeeded in reaching the city it was stated. They dropped several bombs. Two other planes coming up the Thames Estuary were stopped before reaching London. Others crossed Essex dropping bombs southwest and northwest of London. Several houses were demolished. The reports from the coast declared that a vivid aurora borealis over the North Sea illuminated the coast and made possible last night's air raid.

The same phenomenon was visible throughout practically the entire northern part of the United States last night.

NEW COAL ORDER

The following order has been promulgated by the U. S. Fuel administration:

No charge for hauling may be made by the operator of a wagon mine or paid by the purchaser of the coal on coal shipped by rail, except where such shipment is made in box cars, in which case an additional charge not to exceed 75c per ton may be made.

In all other cases the price of wagon mine coal on board cars shall not exceed the price prescribed by the President and the fuel administrator for coal in the mine.

Coal sold from a wagon mine in Clearfield county and loaded in box cars shall be sold at $3.80 per net ton on board cars. A commission of 15c per ton may be added to this price if sold through broker.

SLACKERS WILL BE PICKED UP BEFORE LONG

The Fellow In Class 1 Who Has Not Been Examined Had Better Get Busy Now

NEW MEDICAL BOARD ORDER

The local exemption board has received notice to return to the Adjutant General's department at Harrisburg for transmission to the war department the names of all registrants who have not returned their questionnaires together with the names of all those in Class 1A who have been called and not presented themselves for medical examination. These names will be sent in this week.

When the names are received by the war department each man will be listed as a deserter and an order will be issued for his arrest forthwith.

This ruling, while absolutely just and right, will work a hardship on many a registrant, who waived the call and volunteering is now in service, but whose address is unknown to the local boards and whose families have not thought it worth while to forward questionnaires or other official mail, because they knew the registrant to be in the service, or acquainted the board with their latest address.

Every man in Class 1A who has not yet received his call for examination had better get in touch with his local board, because it is up to him to be on hand when wanted and the mere fact that he failed to receive a call for examination will not save him. He cannot shift his responsibility to the postoffice or any other agency. It is solely up to him and if he has not been examined he is liable to arrest and will be picked up one of these days soon.

We also take occasion now to correct a wrong impression in the minds of many men examined in Class 1A. When the examinations were first held it was the understanding of the orders issued at that time that all those registrants not accepted for first line service would have to go to the medical advisory board at DuBois.

All that has been changed now by the exemption board ruling that the local exemption board will pass upon all cases of possible physical disability, subject to review by the district board, with the exception of those cases which require chemical analysis, X-ray or other procedure wherein the facilities of a modern hospital are necessary. Therefore instead of all those accepted for limited service having to be finally passed upon by the medical advisory board at DuBois, none but those special cases enumerated above will have to go and those persons selected for limited service by the local board are now subject to call the same as those accepted for military service. All those expecting to have to go before the medical advisory board at DuBois will be notified in due time and certificates as to their status will soon be issued to all registrants passed upon at the recent examinations.

SHAPLAN'S CABLES FROM PETROGRAD

The young man who is sticking to his post in Russia to get news for The United Press. The only Press Association correspondent on the ground in Russia.

By Joseph Shaplan
Copyright by United Press 1918

Petrograd, March 6.—The war commissariat today published a plan for arming the whole Russian people offering an immediate opportunity for those desiring to learn military science to prepare for a resumption of the war in the future.

After withdrawing from Narvo the Russians recaptured Jamburg which they fortified with reinforcements from Petrograd. The Germans halted operations in accordance with General Hoffman's order. The Russians attempted to stay outside the city but were obliged to fall back owing to the enemy artillery fire.

LIEUT. PATTERSON SEVERELY INJURED

First Lieutenant Raymond Patterson, son of Mrs. W. H. Patterson, Sr. of Front street, was painfully and seriously injured in an accident which occurred at a government experimental laboratory in Washington, D. C., on Saturday last. Lieutenant Patterson is an expert chemist attached to the poison gas department of the U. S. Army and with a number of other chemists has been engaged in developing and testing out different gases. Saturday last a number of shells had been prepared and were being put in shape to be taken to the proving grounds for testing out. They were placed on a shelf in the laboratory where the men were getting ready to proceed with them to the test.

Entering the section where the bombs were lying Lieut. Patterson noticed one of the number burning. Realizing instantly that if the bomb exploded where it was and set off its companions much damage and possible loss of life would naturally ensue, the young man grabbed the burning death-dealing instrument for the purpose of throwing it out and averting a calamity. He was successful in his attempt but the deadly missile exploded as it left his hand and as a result his entire left hand and wrist were badly mangled and burned. The gas fumes also seriously affected him.

His mother and brother, William H. Patterson were at once notified of the accident and were assured that while Lieut. Patterson's injuries were severe and extremely painful, serious consequences were not to be feared.

It was a gallant and heroic act and the young man was highly complimented on his heroism and prompt action.

OLD AUROA BOREALIS WORKING

The aurora borealis or "northern lights" were very much admired in the northern sky. The heavenly illumination attracted a great deal of attention. Several Fourth Ward citizens after viewing the display for awhile decided they could discern an airplane darting about among the clouds even going so far as to declare they could see the operator switching his searchlight on and off.

Hearing of no destructive bomb dropping in this locality we are constrained to believe the outlanders were mistaken. We have queried Pete Brown for corroborative evidence from his "Big Knob" observatory, but Pete had not come down the ladder from the "peep hole" when our correspondent left for the telephone.

MORE ENLISTMENTS

Mike Parana and Paul Belbass, two Morris township young men, enlisted at the recruiting office of the local Exemption Board yesterday and were sent to Columbus, Ohio, by Chief Clerk Bain, where they will join the Coast Artillery.

James King, Peter Latz, Joe Michelson, Howard Gross and Leonard Huston, of Elyertown and Earl Scott, of Grass Flat, enlisted in the regular army at Philadelphia and left Thursday for Fort Slocum, New York.

PETROGRAD IS RICH PRIZE FOR HUN INVADER

Russian Capital Has Millions in Pure Gold Stored Away in Old Palaces And Churches

IT IS NOT AN ANCIENT CITY

Washington, D. C., Mar. 8.—Should the German army of invasion continue its onward march through Russia and ultimately reach Petrograd, which is rumored to be the goal of the movement, the Germans would come into possession of one of the richest prizes of the war. The Russian capital is a city of great wealth as well as of great magnificence. The national palaces, museums and art galleries of the city are filled with collections of priceless value. The great cathedrals are filled with untold riches. A levy upon the city and its citizens, as was done in Belgium, would yield the German conquerors millions in gold.

Petrograd is in many ways unique among cities. Only a century and a half ago the little peninsula on which the city stands was nothing more than a dreary, marshy waste, surrounded by thickets and forests and inhabited by a few lonely Finnish fishermen. The region was, however, always looked upon by the peoples in the interior as important for their trade. Novgorod and Moscow both made determined efforts to secure control over it. They built forts at various points in this region during the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, and in their efforts thus to safeguard themselves, they were forever coming into violent contact with the Swedes.

The Swedes, too, erected forts, and during the sixteenth century, it was only by means of almost continuous fighting that, first Novgorod, and then Moscow, maintained its supremacy. In the seventeenth century the power of the Swedes steadily increased, until finally Moscow was compelled to cede the district to Sweden. With the first year of the eighteenth century, however, the position began to be reversed. In 1700 Peter the Great commenced his wars with Sweden and before long drove the Swedes from the region surrounding the mouth of the Neva.

In 1702, even before peace had been established with Sweden, Peter the Great gave orders for the erection of the city which he named after his patron saint, St. Peter. All obstacles were borne down in accomplishing his purpose. Vast armies of people from all parts of Russia were removed to the banks of the Neva to build and to colonize. Great piles were driven deep into the marshlands, in hundreds and thousands, and on these houses were erected in all directions. Everything, in fact, that could be done was done to create a capital, and to create it as quickly as possible.

Once fairly launched, the new city grew apace. As time went on, a system of canals was developed connecting the upper Volga and the Dnieper with the great lakes of the north, and thus, as far as commerce was concerned, the mouth of the Volga was transferred to the Gulf of Finland. Foreigners flocked in great numbers after a time to the new city, and the Russian capital became what it has always remained, one of the most cosmopolitan towns in Europe. Under the Empress Elizabeth, fresh compulsory measures raised the population to 150,000 and during the reign of Catherine II. this figure was almost doubled.

Today, where only a century and a half ago stood a few mud huts of fishermen, reigns a city of marvellous beauty—a city of palaces and cathedrals, of theaters and boulevards and universities. Truly, a rich prize for the Teuton invader.

TIN HORN PATRIOTS

The phrase "tin horn sport" is not so frequently heard as it was a few years ago when wages and salaries were not on such a basis of equality as they are today. Present conditions have, however, brought into being, or rather have brought to light, a new variety of tin horn sport who might be better termed a tin horn patriot. He is the fellow who backs the war, boisterously condemns Germany, professes to be a loyal citizen and loses no opportunity to pay lip tribute to the thousands of boys who have laid their lives on the altar of world freedom and American liberty, but sneaks around the corner when he sees the tax collector approaching. For three months the newspapers have been trying to make it plain, and have made it plain, that every single man earning over $1000 per year must pay an income tax and that every married man who earns or has an income of over $2000 must do likewise. Every man who is making such wages or salary is, we believe, cognizant of this demand on his pocket-book as a means of carrying on the war, but it is surprising how many of them have dodged the income tax man. They apparently forget that the income tax man will not hunt them up. It is up to every patriotic man to look up the income tax man or pay the penalty later when he is caught, and caught he will be just as sure as the sun shines. This is the last week that the income tax collector will be in Clearfield and it behooves every man who counts himself a good American citizen to hunt this man up and pay his just taxes to help support the boys in the trenches.

NOW IS THE TIME

With the country literally rolling in wealth, with salaries larger and wages higher than they have ever been before, with opportunities to work extra time, there never was a more propitious period for the people to turn their thoughts to thrift and to saving.

The wise man is now laying by something for a rainy day. He knows that the present scale will not always obtain. He is aware of the fact that there will come a season of readjustments, with an accompanying revision downward of wages, at least for unskilled labor, and he is fortifying himself by husbanding his financial resources. He is not accumulating extravagant and expensive habits and appetites which he will not be able to indulge in the future.

In this respect he differs from the unwise man who is living up to every cent he earns, who is buying goods that are not essential to his health, his happiness and his comfort, who does not seem to be able to get away from the hand-to-mouth method of living.

Living's cost has advanced, yes; but there are many things that most of us are better off without; many things which most of us really cannot afford. So far as food is concerned, it is entirely possible to arrange a well balanced diet of good, pure and wholesome food at reasonable prices. As for wearables, clothes of good quality are the cheapest in the end.

With unprecedented prosperity and unprecedented wages the dividends that labor is realizing should be put in the bank and saved.

This is a time when it is absolutely necessary to conserve along every line and in every way.

THE USE OF NITRATE OF SODA

The importance of nitrate of soda by the government as a means of increasing food production makes the use of this fertilizing material of especial interest at this time. It should be used in such a way as to give a maximum increase in crop yields. So far as possible its use should be confined to crops used directly as food.

Experiments at the Pennsylvania State College conducted for thirty-five years give definite information relative to the value of nitrate of soda on corn and wheat grown in the common four-year rotation of corn, oats, wheat and grass. These results show that even at present high prices of grain crops, little profit will result from the use of nitrate of soda for corn and wheat. Of the other two crops, wheat gives greater assurance of profit than corn.

Figuring corn at $1.25 a bushel in the field, nitrate of soda as an average for a period of thirty-five years has been worth, when applied to this crop, $44.75 a ton. Valuing wheat at $2 a bushel unharvested, which is more than the 1918 guaranteed price, nitrate has been worth $95.04 a ton. The residual effect of the nitrate applied to corn and wheat on the following oat and grass crops has been of some additional value.

Acid phosphate has given far greater increases and much more profit on these crops than has nitrate of soda. For any assurance of profitable increases in yields of corn and wheat from nitrate of soda, phosphate acid must first be supplied in liberal amounts. Where the grain crops are manured or where they follow a heavy clover sod, there would be little chance of profit from nitrate at present prices, according to E. L. Worthen, of the agronomy department of the Pennsylvania State College.

LETTERS FROM OUR SOLDIER BOYS

LETTER FROM CLYDE JOHNSON

Galveston, Texas,
February 28 1918.

Dear Aunt Blanch:—
Was not only surprised but very much pleased to receive your most interesting letter. I am not much of a letter writer so you will have to excuse this short type-written letter. Have been working in the Orderly Room (Company Office) for about three months and have been using the typewriter quite a bit and can do so much better with it than with a pencil.

If you have ever been in Galveston you may know what a nice place we have. I am well pleased with it and would like to stay thru the summer. Have been in the salt water a few times and find it a great sport.

Hope Uncle Jim is better by this time. Give him my best wishes and tell him to write to me. I certainly do get lonesome some times and would give most anything to get back to old Clearfield for a few days but "I'm in the Army now" and I'll get home when Uncle Sammy is thru with me.

Well Aunt Blanch I will have to close for this time as it is almost time

The ladies high score was held by Mrs. Pigott, of New York State, mother of Howard Pigott, of this city. Grant Thompson held the highest man's score. The usual prizes which are decks of cards were awarded.

IN ARMY TO FIGHT NOT TO PLAY BALL

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Notwithstanding the fact that he's in the Marine Corps as a volunteer, Jack "Dots" Miller, former captain and first baseman of the St. Louis Nationals, thought he stood a good chance of being drafted.

The Marine Corps baseball team in this city needs crack infielders and "Dots" Miller's name heads the list of prospects.

"Gee, I don't want to be drafted and play ball," grumbled "Dots" when informed that he may be chosen to play on the crack Marine nine.

"I want to fight—that's why I joined this outfit. And now they want me to play ball. Can you beat such luck?" But when General Barnett was informed that he would rather fight than play ball, he declined to order him to Washington.

Miller would probably have managed the Cardinals the coming season had he stuck to baseball instead of joining the colors.

On Saturday we will place on sale 200 pairs of men's heavy work shoes. They aren't just shoddy shoes—they're made by Dayton, Endicott-Johnson and makers of like reputation.

To buy these shoes today I would have to pay as much for them as I will sell them for during this sale. The reason for the sale is to clean up the odds and ends and make room for the Spring goods that are beginning to come in.

Come early. There are all sizes in the lot but there isn't an entire run of sizes in any one make of shoe.

Mrs. Catherine Thompson, Curwensville's oldest resident, celebrated her 94th birthday very pleasantly at her home yesterday. Mrs. Thompson, who is the mother of Mrs. Blanche Stevenson, of Clearfield, is enjoying remarkably good health, considering her advanced age, and greatly enjoyed the occasion yesterday. Two of her daughters, Mrs. Emily Mahaffey, of Ebensburg and Mrs. Charles Frank of Patton, were home for the occasion. An elegant family dinner was served in the evening.

John Porter, a half brother of Mrs. Thompson, who lives in Pike township, a couple of miles from Curwensville, is hale and hearty in his 97th year.

SUIT WITH LIGHT WAISTCOAT

Suits pursue a happy middle course
this spring in the matter of decoration.
None of them are uncompromisingly
plain and few of them are much trimmed. Small covered buttons make a quiet finishing touch for the example
of faultless tailoring shown in the picture. The coat just escapes closing
at the front and shows a slight cut-
away below its buckle and strap fastening. It is worn over a light waistcoat and has an odd new sleeve that
widens below the elbow.

An Important Showing of NEWEST Spring Waists

With The Popularity of the Separate Waist Already As- sured This Showing Will Be Exceedingly Important From Many Angles

First of all, the styles shown are the authentic fashions for the coming Spring. They are fresh, new and pleasingly attractive. The waists have been marked at costs that will appeal at once because of the values provided. The collection is so broad and so desirable, you will find a prompt visit worthy of a special trip to the store.

White Voile Blouses $1.00 Exceptional Values

None will be sent C. O. D., no mail orders or exchanges. Made of a very sheer white voile; some lace trimmed; other in tailored effects. A few of nainsook and other materials with hemstitching and tucks. Of course, the lot is limited and the earlier you come the wider the choice.

Beautiful Voile Waists at $1.95, $2.50, $3, $3.50 to $7.50

Purely a matter of whether you will be able to hold yourself in check from buying half a dozen when you only intended taking home one or two. Part of the new shipment, we mentioned would come in in a few days—and such beautiful, striking waists we have not seen in the longest while! Yet they are delightfully plain and not a bit overdone.

First Showing of Some Wonderfully Designed Crepe de Chine and Georgette Crepe Blouses from $3.95 to $12.50

When a woman begins to describe such waists as these, she paints such a wonderful picture that you wonder if the waists are really as pretty as she has pictured them to you. So just imagine some of your friends telling you about a really beautiful waist she has seen, then you can picture just what these crepe de chine and Georgette crepe blouses are like.
Such delicate colorings, such wonderfully thought out designs and such unique and effective trimming ideas. Waists like these can be worn until they are worn out completely and they are always in good style and good taste. The trimmings vary from beaded effects to lace and hand embroidery. Colors are white, cream, and a number of new odd shades that will be very much in vogue. Prices $3.95 to $12.50.

New Metal Bag Tops

New shipment of attractive novelties in metal bag tops. Clever designs in green gold and grey silver finish. When finished with be-tasseled ribbon bags' brilliant shades, they make a most becoming addition to any costume.
